

Pick up a stick and swab out cancer for Team Harrison!

Just a swab of your cheek and BOOM!
Your unique DNA could score a lifesaving bone marrow donor for Harrison or someone else battling blood cancer.

On October 7, 2019, Harrison started the school day with his annual pediatric check-up. By bedtime he had a diagnosis of acute myeloid leukemia. Boom! His life is forever changed. Instead of spending his days with his 3rd grade class learning multiplication or on the ice with his hockey team, he is fighting for his life with chemotherapy treatments, dozens of daily medications and most recently the search for a life-saving bone marrow transplant donor.

If you are between 18 - 55, all it takes is six minutes and a swab of the cheek to get in the game and potentially save a life. You just might be the one person who can help Harrison and other patients win the fight against cancer!
